A Legacy of Hospitality

For over a century, patrons have found comfort in this historic inn nestled in the heights of the Meadowlands. Opened in the 1870's as a stagecoach inn, travelers in horse and carriages, riding along Polifly Road (later named Terrace Avenue), stopped here to eat and drink in the tavern below and sleep in one of six guest rooms above. After the turn of the 20th Century the Inn evolved into a fine dining restaurant (a popular speakeasy during Prohibition), but eventually fell into disrepair.

In 1996, the current owners undertook an extensive renovation. The three, brick-faced fireplaces in the dining rooms and cherry ceiling beams in the now, Red Room, were uncovered and repaired. The horseshoe bar was re-veneered, and the oak icebox (brass plate dates to 1912) was refurbished and moved to stand in view as a focal point inside the barroom.

On Valentine's Day of 1997, the Inn once again opened its doors for fine dining, aptly renamed, Ivy Inn. Ivy, the symbol of love and marriage, has proven to be a fitting name. Since reopening, the Inn has witnessed countless marriage proposals, weddings, and anniversary celebrations. Continuing its long legacy of hospitality, the Ivy Inn is once again a Bergen County favorite and continues to promise cherished memories for many years to come.
